FAB FIVE | SUNGLASSES

With the rain-to-sun ratio switching up in our favour, Vancouverites are again donning sunglasses. This year, the fashion forward are looking back, wearing frames that take their inspiration from other eras — think Eleanor Roosevelt in the '40s, Audrey Hepburn in the '60s, Sophia Loren in the '70s or Jack Nicholson in the '80s — there's a decade for every taste.

CELEB SIGHTINGS

Sienna Miller, Jessica Alba and Valentino Rossi are a few of the celebs who don SUPER sunglasses, which are more than super-stylish with their super-protective ZEISS lenses.

MEOW!

Breakfast at Tiffany's star Audrey Hepburn didn't have the rosette adornments on her shades but she famously wore the cat-eye frame.

BLUE RUBY

A cause to celebrate Mom

You can give a "hand up" to single mothers and their children when you purchase special-edition handcrafted bracelets from Blue Ruby. The local jewelry retailer has partnered with Vancouver-based Cause We Care Foundation just in time for Mother's Day to create bracelets from teak wood beads with turquoise, aquamarine and blue quartz accent beads. One hundred per cent of the proceeds go to support programs for after-school care, workshops and emergency funding for single mothers.

Bracelets are available at Blue Ruby stores until June for $20 to $45 for a single bracelet, with a set of three for $55. For more info, go to blueruby.com, or causewecare.org.

BAREMINERALS

Ready Mineral foundation

They say:

A solid mineral foundation that delivers the benefits of sea minerals, including hydration and smoothing effects, with a bonus SPF. The full range of long-wearing compact powders are available in 20 shades.

We say: A full coverage foundation that doesn't make your skin feel like a mask can be hard to come by, but this portable compact accomplishes this nearly impossible feat. The powder blends easily onto the face and conceals imperfections similarly to many of its liquid counterparts. Scent-free and with SPF 20, this lightweight foundation combines the benefits of multiple products into one.

STYLE Q&A | EUNICE QUAN

Building a creative community

DESCRIBE THE STORE, ITS FOCUS AND AESTHETIC? When we first began developing the concept behind our store, our main focus was to create a platform to showcase young emerging designers in fashion, art and design. Too often we would walk into different boutiques and see the same star power brands carried time and time again. We created the store with the notion that there are consumers who, like us, want something fresh and unique.

WHAT MADE YOU DECIDE TO OPEN A SECOND SHOP? AND WHY GASTOWN AFTER UNION STREET? The second store was a simple evolution from our first space in regards to concept and aesthetic. As we were growing and taking on more designers and lines, we needed more square footage. This space we are now in on Carrall Street was the initial store front we had wanted to lease. When we heard it was opening up, we decided to jump on it. We were less focused on moving to Gastown, but rather was drawn in by the beautiful, historical store front.

WHAT'S NEW FOR THIS SEASON? With the new space, we wanted to focus on representing more than just clothing designers, to give a voice to designers in the art-object world. We are working closely with some great artists such as Doug Johnston, who is a self-declared weaver, and Suzanne Sullivan, a potter based out of Brooklyn.

WHO IS YOUR MAIN MARKET? Vancouver's creatives.

WHERE DO YOU SOURCE YOUR PRODUCTS? My partners David, Armin and I love to travel. The people we meet and the places we go inspire us in regards to pieces we stock. So really the world is our playground.

WHAT'S YOUR PRICE POINT? $5-$500.

WHAT ARE YOUR AMBITIONS FOR THE SHOPS? We have always said that first and foremost we want to build a positive creative community around our stores. Our customers are our friends and we love the idea that our store is a hub for creatives to gather. Our ambition is to continue to offer a space where designers can meet, and showcase their work.
